September 14, 2012 (San Diego, CA) –Art is popping up in unlikely places in San Diego. Art Boxed San Diego: A PODS® Project is a portable exhibition highlighting local contemporary artists creating thought-provoking and participatory art in storage containers donated by PODS® Moving & Storage. The temporary spaces are a way for the community to take part in unique cultural experiences outside of the traditional museum and gallery setting. A total of nine PODS® storage containers will be transformed by San Diego artists and Think Tank: a collective of emerging art organizations and alternative spaces in partnership with the Museum of Contemporary Art San Diego.

Art Boxed San Diego: A PODS® Project is a feature of the City of San Diego Commission for Arts and Culture's FALL FOR THE ARTS—a month-long spotlight on the many vibrant arts and cultural activities throughout the region in conjunction with National Arts and Humanities Month. Over 70 arts and cultural organizations will offer special programs, discounts, incentives and activities providing countless opportunities to experience arts in San Diego. More information on FALL FOR THE ARTS can be found at www.sandiego.org/campaigns/fall-for-the-arts.aspx.

An opening artists reception for Art Boxed San Diego: A PODS® Project and kick-off event for the month-long FALL FOR THE ARTS community-wide collaboration will take place during Friday Night Liberty, NTC at Liberty Station in Point Loma on Friday, October 5, 5-10 p.m. The PODS® storage containers will remain on site for public viewing through Friday, October 12 before relocating to various sites throughout San Diego for the remainder of the month.
